Global Focus report: Fertilisers, a precious commodity

30-11-2007 | Other news

The biofuels boom and explosive grain area expansion have resulted in fertiliser demand beyond current fertiliser production capacity, and has caused significant increase in prices around the world.

A Rabobank Global Focus Report: Fertilisers, a Precious Commodity, says farmers need to improve efficiency and productivity to handle the world's expanding need for higher crop yields.

Increases in fertiliser consumption are being driven partly by the biofuels boom. In the US, for example, the report says, increasing demand for corn for ethanol production resulted in 2007 in farmers planting the largest acreage to corn since 1944.

"In many cases, farmers replaced their usual rotation crops, such as soybeans, with corn, which requires 32 times more nitrogen (fertiliser) per acre than the equivalent area of soybeans," says Ingrid Richardson, Rabobank Senior Analyst and report author.

Richardson also believes the intensified demand for fertiliser is the result of a combination of factors including increased need for higher agricultural yields due to world population growth and improving economic prosperity, high agricultural commodity prices and the emergence of the biofuels industry.

At a global level, the report notes, while there is much focus on investigating alternative energy sources, there has been comparatively little attention devoted to ensuring the sustainability of agricultural production through access to fertiliser or investigation into fertiliser alternatives.

India 2020 The Rise of the Elephant

21-11-2007 | Other news

In recent years, the Indian economy has been experiencing a Chinese style growth rate. The rise of the elephant should not come as a surprise. India is merely reclaiming its history. Looking at past strengths and current and future potential, India is better dubbed as a remerging market.

A special scenario study by Rabobank's Economic Research Department called, "The Rise of the Elephant- India 2020" places India's full economic potential in the spotlight. Country Risk Research has summarised a few of India's Business Opportunities in Food and Agriculture; Telecom, Media and Internet; and Banking.

More details and all Business Opportunities, Key Challenges and Growth Scenarios can be found by downloading the full 33 page report.

INDIA BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY HIGHLIGHTS

Food and Agriculture

Rabobank is cultivating relationships with clients in seeds, fertilisers and other agri-inputs by offering financial products, such as weather prediction tools and crop insurance. Given India's need to upgrade its agricultural performance and develop its food supply chain, Rabobank's extensive knowledge of this sector is a valuable asset.

Telecom, Media and Internet

This year India overtook China as the world's fastest growing market for mobile telephony. Every month, mobile service providers add more than 6 million subscribers to their accounts. To reach potential customers in rural areas, the industry will have to focus on infrastructure deployment, as well as affordability.

Banking

The banking sector in India is benefiting from rising incomes, increasing consumption and growing business investment. The corporate banking market is overcrowded and overbanked. Rural areas show a clear demand for higher quality retail services. But, rural banks are often unprofitable and undercapitalized. New regulations and government support is giving rural banks more firepower.

Can elephants fly?

India's excellent growth performance may suggest that the Indian economy has successfully launched itself into the Asian tiger economies. However, despite progress, the crucial question remains whether India's growth acceleration is sustainable. What will happen when the elephant takes flight?

Rabobank programs match Nobel Prize winning philosophy

14-11-2007 | Other news

The 2006 Nobel Peace Prize winner's financial service to the poor has earned Muhammad Yunus a well-deserved invitation to this year's Raiffeisen Lecture hosted by Rabobank. "If anyone deserves to give a Raiffeisen Lecture, it is you, Dr. Yunus," said Rabobank CEO Bert Heemskerk, "You are the born-again Raiffeisen."

Rabobank founder Friedrich Raiffeisen provided charitable relief to poor farmers. He gradually realised that self-help was more sustainable than charity. Raiffeisen transformed his charity into an agricultural co-operative bank in 1864.

Over 120 years later, Dr. Muhammad Yunus started a similar bank for the impoverished people of Bangladesh. Since 1983, Grameen Bank has provided ladders and ropes to help the poor out of the poverty hole.

The Head of Rabobank Corporate Social Responsibility, Bart Jan Krouwel said, "Having Dr. Yunus lecture about microfinancing is very important to us. Rabobank is based on the same principles and has similar social and sustainable programs as Grameen Bank."

Yunus's venture holds a mirror to the Western world and to Rabobank. He has based his bank on trust and respect of human beings. Dr. Yunus has shown there is hope in placing the qualities of individuals first.

Rabobank and Grameen Bank have similar humble beginnings. To show that the cooperative banking model is still sustainable, modern day Rabobank programs have been matched with the modern day Yunus philosophy in the three categories:

The impact of microfinancing on the poor

Making a social impact

Controlling environmental impact

Yunus on the microfinancing impact on the poor

More than half of the world has no access to financial services. Dr. Yunus believes, "Financial services should ladder to help people out of poverty, rather than just a source of income and profit."

What is Rabobank doing to provide the poor with financial services?

Rabobank participates in Terrafina. This partnership works to support microfinancing institutions in four African countries: Mali, Burkina Faso, Ethiopia and Rwanda.

Yunus on creating businesses with a social impact

Companies can turn corporate social responsibility into a profitable business with a social impact. Dr. Yunus explains, "Creating a self-sustaining Social Business achieves the same goals as a donation except that companies have a chance to regain their original investment."

What is Rabobank doing to create a social impact?

Rabobank collaborates with Micro Insurance Association Netherlands. MIAN supports aligning Dutch methods for micro-insurance to impoverished communities in India.

Yunus on controlling environmental impact

"We need to look at our own lifestyles and how we raise our children to care for the planet. The goal should be to leave the planet better than you found it," said Dr. Yunus.

What is Rabobank doing to create a better, safer planet?

Rabobank International engages in the funding and/or leasing of renewable energy. They also finance other sustainable projects including biofuel facilities, wind farms and Green Label Glasshouses.

Vogelzang Committee: Rasmussen was rightly expelled from Tour de France

12-11-2007 | Other news

Former Rabo rider Michael Rasmussen purposely lied about his whereabouts and as a result could not be located for a large number of days. He was consequently not available for doping tests. Based on this finding, the General Managing Director of Rabo Cycling Teams, Theo de Rooij, was right to expel Rasmussen from the Tour de France. This is the conclusion reached by the Vogelzang Committee in its report. The rider claims that he incorrectly stated his whereabouts due to private reasons. The Committee does not deem this explanation to be credible.

The Executive Board of Rabobank Nederland commissioned the Vogelzang Committee to carry out an independent investigation into the events and facts before, during and briefly after the Tour de France '07. The reason for this investigation was the expulsion of Rasmussen from the Tour de France on 25 July 2007 and his subsequent dismissal. Theo de Rooij then decided to step down as General Managing Director of Rabo Cycling Teams on 3 August 2007.

The Committee is convinced that Rasmussen should not have been permitted to start in the Tour de France based on the information that was known to the Board of Directors of Rabo Cycling Teams. The Committee concludes that the Board of Directors of Rabo Cycling Teams in general and its Chairman Theo de Rooij in particular did not adequately assess the importance of multiple signs concerning Rasmussen's conduct prior to the Tour '07. The Board of Directors also failed to inform the Supervisory Board of Rabo Cycling Teams promptly and comprehensively. The Board of Directors hence endangered the reputation of both Rabo Cycling Teams and Rabobank. The Committee has not, however, till now been presented with any evidence that would suggest unethical conduct or a lack of integrity on the part of the cycling team's Board of Directors or medical supervision staff.

The Committee is of the opinion that the International Cycling Union (UCI) failed to act with sufficient unambiguousness, vigor and credibility. The UCI must attain a higher level of professionalism with regard to the formulation, enforcement and monitoring of its own doping regulations. It is also crucial to find a system of availability that constitutes less of an invasion of privacy from the viewpoint of riders. The UCI and the national federations should also form one unified front in order to prevent incidents of legal inequality.

In closing, the Committee finds that the process of gathering, processing and verifying the whereabouts information within Rabo Cycling Teams must be improved. Verification of the whereabouts information by the Board of Directors should form a standard part of a transparent culture within Rabo Cycling Teams.

More ATMs for Africa

8-11-2007 | Other news

Eighteen carefully packaged former Rabobank ATMs were shipped to Africa on 1 November 2007. This delivery forms part of a total of 500 machines that will be shipped to the continent in the next year.

Project initiators Albert Wijnands and Bart Janssen of Rabobank Nederland stress that many more machines will be needed in the very near future in light of the urgent need for these replacement ATMs in Africa.

The machines will be shipped to Zambia and to Dar es Salaam, Tanzania, which is home to Africa's highest mountain (Mount Kilimanjaro). Mozambique is also in urgent need of a delivery of replacement ATMs. Rabobank has acquired a participating interest in banks in these countries based on the objective of providing stable banking services to the local population.

Wijnands headed the project for making the machines operational and also ensured that a factory producing bank cards is now up and running in Dar es Salaam. While the 100 previously purchased ATMs are currently in service, the sheer size of the country means that customers often have to walk for hours to get to a machine.

"That's why we are calling on all banks to let us know if they have any ATMs that are almost fully depreciated, or that will be fully depreciated in 2008," say project initiators Wijnands and Janssen of Rabobank Nederland.

Getting a second life

"The NCR machines are still working perfectly well after years of use in the Netherlands, and it would simply be a waste to throw out ATMs that may be old, but are still in good condition," Janssen stated. "That's why we're asking all banks to be loyal and generous and to join forces with us now to respond to this clear need."

"Giving depreciated ATMs a second life by donating them to African countries is clearly in line with our CSR objectives and these machines can certainly continue to be put to good use," said Thomas van Rijkevorsel, Director of Retail Banking at Rabobank Nederland.

Current status

Nine of the eighteen machines now en route to Tanzania will be shipped on to neighbouring Zambia by road. They will be sent to the Zambia National Commercial Bank (Zanaco), a rural bank in which Rabobank also has acquired a participating interest. The machines will be installed in both Zambia's capital, Lusaka, and other locations. Another 500 machines will be shipped next year.

"Rabobank is the only bank in the Netherlands to have initiated this type of project. As a cooperative bank, it is our duty to further develop this extremely practical project," says Wijnands.

Have your say on sustainability reporting today

1-11-2007 | Other news

Thousands of companies including Rabobank issue sustainability reports each year – but who reads them? What do you think of reports? Do they meet the needs of communities, investors, employees, customers, journalists, and non-governmental organisations? The Global Reporting Initiative Readers' Choice Award was designed to find answers to these questions and give you a voice on sustainability reporting

Sponsored by Rabobank

Rabobank is one of the two sponsors of the Award. As our ambition is to remain a global leader in sustainability-oriented banking, your opinion is of crucial importance to meet this challenge.

Your opinion counts

You are invited to score the sustainability reports issued by companies that you work for, own stock in, are neighbours with, report on, or do business with at: <http://awards.globalreporting.org/>. The scoring period is open until 31 December.

Win a trip to Amsterdam

Participants have the chance to win one of eight all expenses paid trips to the Amsterdam Global Conference on Sustainability and Transparency. From 7-9 May 2008, it will feature the GRI Readers' Choice Awards ceremony and the launch of the GRI Readers' Choice Survey report.

About GRI

The Global Reporting Initiative's (GRI) vision is that reporting on economic, environmental, and social performance by all organisations becomes as routine and comparable as financial reporting. The GRI's Reporting Framework is largely seen as the global de facto standard in sustainability reporting.
